Research Shows ...

- The Feeding Infants and Toddlers Study (FITS) found that many infants and toddlers may be adopting unhealthy eating habits practiced by many adult Americans. And what is surprising is that some of these patterns begin as early as nine to 11 months.
- In addition, a child's innate ability to regulate calorie intake appears to be declining from infancy to toddlerhood. This may be due to a lack of understanding from parents and other caregivers of their child's hunger and fullness cues.
